

Revised Registration System Initiated Today

Seniors, Juniors, Grads Sign Up Today; Frosh And Soph Tomorrow

Registration begins today for the spring, 1953, semester at San Francisco State. Graduates, seniors and juniors who have completed pre-registration will initiate the revised registration system beginning this morning at 8 a.m.

Sophomores and freshmen who have been pre-advised will register tomorrow morning beginning at 8 a.m.

Regular students will not be admitted to the Rec Center for program planning without program planning sheet signed by their advisers.

Those who have not completed pre-registration procedures before Friday may register Friday at 8 a.m. and all day through 3:30 p.m.

CONFUSION AVOIDED

The purpose of the revised registration system as outlined by Dean Alan Johnson is to avoid the confusion caused by having consultation with advisers at the same time and place as actual registration program sign-up procedures.

The registration system is outlined in full in the Time Schedule available in the bookstore.

Freshmen and new and re-entering students should have consulted their advisers at times indicated in written instructions sent from the office of admission. Questions from these students concerning pre-advising should be directed to the Student Personnel Office, CH 105.

PRE-ADVISING

Registering students who attended State last semester should have made appointments with their program advisers during the pre-advising period, January 4 through 14.

Students encountering difficulty during registration programing should consult their advisers for further assistance. The information desks in College Hall and in the old gym have information as to the whereabouts of advisers during registration.

Late registration will be held in the evenings on February 9, 10, 11, 12, and 16, and in the daytime in the Registrar's office each day. There is a $2 fee for late registration.

Limited students may register today or tomorrow, or during late registration with payment of late registration fee.

Lockers will be assigned today and tomorrow at the Rec Center, ground floor.

William Spry Named Business Manager

Obligations Cause Delay in Taking Postion Left by Healy

William F. Spry, 27, is the new business manager of the Associated Students, it was learned last week. He fills a position vacant since last summer, when the former business manager, Jack Healy, became Administrator of Student Affairs following the resignation of Bob Katz.

SEVEN APPLICANTS

Spry was selected from seven applicants by the placement committee of the Board of Directors. He is a graduate of the College of the Pacific and did undergraduate work at both the University of California and Stockton J. C. Presently he is employed at the California Packing company in San Francisco.

When asked for his reaction, Spry said: "The appointment came as an overwhelming surprise. I consider it a distinct honor and privilege. I hope I will be able to serve the college to the best of my ability."

INDEFINITE DATE

Because of obligations to his present employer, Spry could not definitely say when he would assume his new duties. "But I am looking forward to the job," he said. "I was truly impressed with my short meeting with Jack Healy, and I will be doing extremely well, I think, to be able to fill his shoes." (Healy has been holding down the duties of the business manager as well as his official position—Administrator of Student Affairs.)—L.L.

COLLEGE OF MARIN GIVES RALLY HERE

Students from the College of Marin will present a rally for State students next Wednesday, February 11, at 12 noon, in the Rec Center.

The rally is in response to the college dance band, as well as other student talent.

The rally is in response to an exchange rally presented by State at College of Marin last semester.

Negro History Week

Celebrated At S.F. State

Negro History week will be observed at S. F. State next week, January 9-14. Sam White and Ken Azbill head the movement on-campus.

Exhibits in the cafeteria and bookstore will initiate the program. Tentative plans include a panel discussion on Friday sponsored by the Humanities division.

Don Johnson Resigns

From Board Of Control

Don Johnson, former student body president, resigned last week from his position as member-at-large on the Board of Control. He explained, in his letter of resignation, that he was joining the armed service.

Sam Laird was appointed by the board to fill Johnson's position for the remainder of the semester.

Johnson was president of the Associated Students from 1951-52. His term of office saw, among other important advancements, the advent of the universal student body card.

Ibsen's 'The Wild Duck' Wings to State Theater

Impending Draft Of Dan Whiteside Halts Play; Director Ted Samuel Fills Gap As Show Goes On

Henrik Ibsen's "The Wild Duck," now roaring towards its final stages as a S. F. State Theatre production, was called to a shuddering halt last week when it was learned that Dan Whiteside, the male lead, was to be drafted following the first weekend of performance, February 12-14.

After hasty consultations, it was decided that student director Ted Samuel would replace Whiteside during the second weekend, February 17-20.

"The Wild Duck," according to Samuel, will be: (1) The first full-length production to be student-directed; (2) The first full-length production to be presented on a circular stage, with the audience seated at ringside, as it were; (3) The first drama presentation to grace the orchestra room, AB 9.

The play itself, Samuel added, is concerned with the conflict between realism and illusion, and its effect upon a family. "The child of the family (Virginia Chesse) becomes the victim of the manipulations of two men (Dan Whiteside—Ted Samuel, and Dion Chesse), who are trying to diagnose the family situation in order to make everybody happier."

The play will be presented in the 1890 translation, because, they say, it gets the best feeling across. Apparently Ibsen's closely-knit playwriting is impossible to cut, and the play will be presented as it was written—another first for the drama department.

The cast: Dan Whiteside and Ted Samuel (Geggers), Virginia Chesse (Hedwig), Joe Carillo (Hjalmar), Lew Karcher (Werle), Shirl Chambers (Gina), Ed Hosack (Ekdal), Dion Chesse (Dr. Relling), John Natale (Melvik), Mary Ann Hackett (Mrs. Sorby), Robert McClay (Pettersen), Karin Lagergren (Hedda), Ed Zeni, Gary Hughes, Leonard Stahl (Three Gentlemen), Dick Frewin (Graberg).

Sets and lighting are under the supervision of Ralph McCormick, Bob Segrin and Bob Waite. Costumes are by Jean White.—L. L.

Registration Dance Set Friday Night

The social season for the Spring semester will begin with a registration dance at the New Campus gym Friday night following the Gators basketball game with Sacramento State college.

Admission is free to the dance which has become a tradition at S. F. State.

Jimmy Polo's band will highlight the musical portion and refreshments will be served in the lobby of the gym.

The dance will be sponsored by the students working on the revised registration committees.

The JV teams of S. F. State and Sacramento State will play in the preliminary to the varsities. The JV's are scheduled to start playing at 6:30 and the varsity at 8 p.m. The dance to follow will be from 9:30 to 12:30.

All the students and faculty are invited according to Bert Phillips, activities commissioner.

On the morning of January 19, Mrs. Perkins and Miss Jean Bunell found Miss Sugar shivering in the cold. She bundled her up and took her to the S.P.C.A. shelter, where the veterinarian, Dr. Michaels, diagnosed the illness as distemper.

Miss Sugar has recovered enough to leave the hospital, and has been adopted by a family who will give her a good home.

There is a surplus of money left from the fund drive. It will be used for two purposes according to Mrs. Perkins. The money will be banked and used in case a similar situation arises with one of the campus pets. The most important use of the fund will have is that of supplying license fees for the animals in the S.P.C.A. shelter which are to be destroyed, should a student wish to adopt a doomed animal. Additional contributions for this purpose should be made to Mrs. Perkins, College Hall, 105.

Flash! The two platoon system in intramural athletics has been outlawed at San Francisco State. In keeping with the national trend Director of Intramurals, Bill Harkness, declared in an interview recently that all intramural teams would be limited, in the future, to 15 men.

This new edict is designed to equalize competition between fraternity, club, and independent intramural teams. Heretofore, 15 men was only the recommended limitation and some teams enlisted up to 35 men to insure strength in all sports.

These larger clubs had almost the equivalent of " platoons" in some sports which was detrimental to the spirit of Bill Harkness' "play for all" program.

Interested bystanders predict that this revolutionary ruling will end the perennial reign of two or three groups as All-Sports champions.

Sixteen activities will make up this spring's intramural athletic calendar. A speedball tournament will inaugurate the program with softball, volleyball, badminton, tennis, table tennis, football pentathlon, track meet, horseshoes, golf, golf hole-in-one, photography contest, poster contest, swimming, wrestling, and gymnastics following.

Leagues will be formed for noon, afternoon, and night play, and clubs, fraternities, independent groups, ROTC units, freshmen groups, etc., are urged to form and enter teams as soon as possible. Tuesday night from 7 until 9 o'clock is planned for night league games in volleyball and badminton.

For all other leagues the facilities Credit interested students may earn 1/2-1 unit by enrolling in P. E. 55.1-9 for a guided experience in a variety of intramural activities. Sections of this course are offered at noon, afternoon, Tuesday night, and by arrangement. Details about credit for intramurals and entry cards may be obtained directly from Bill Harkness or Art Bridgman in the intramural office, new campus.

State Basketballers Split With Fresno Bulldogs

With eight straight wins in its gas tank, the Gator machine finally bogged down in Fresno, Friday, January 23, as the hoopsters bowed to a determined Fresno Bulldog squad 53-49. The S.F. Staters came right back, however, to even the two-game series with a 80-60 win the next night.

This split left the Gators with nine wins in their last ten starts and prolonged the hope for what looks like an extremely successful season for Coach Dan Farmer's boys.

Friday's contest found the San Francisco squad having foul trouble, as 25 miscues were called against the Gators as against 13 credited to the Bulldogs. While the Gators were outscoring the Fresnoans in the field goal department, the Fresno State team consistently hit with gift tosses and managed to finish on the long end of a four point margin.

Again, in the Saturday game, the Gators were troubled by the fouls called against them, amassing 26 in the contest. Coach Farmer substituted freely, however, kept the fouls well distributed among the team, and the S.F. State squad finished well out in front with a 20-point cushion.

The Saturday win climaxed the two-game series with the Fresno team, a series which was termed very successful by Coach Farmer. "Any time we can split away from home, it's all right," the S.F. State mentor said. The State coach explained the superabundance of fouls by saying that the officials in the south were more technical than those in the northern part of the state. He hastened to add, however, that he meant no reflection on the officiating, but that the San Francisco State team just wasn't accustomed to that tight a game.

In the two-game series, Vic Gipson was the most consistent scorer for the Gators, racking up 14 points in the State team's losing effort Friday and continuing his hot streak again Saturday as he potted 23 for a two-night total of 37.

'Serve as Ambassadors of Good Will In Big Brothering the New Students'

By CEC RILEY

President, A.S.S.F.S.C.

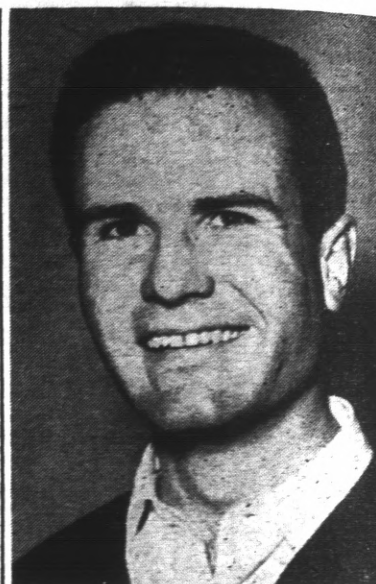

With the opening of the spring semester, San Francisco State will greet approximately 900 new students—900 young people who are unfamiliar with our college community.

These students, some fresh from high school, some transferring from other colleges and universities will be aided in their first few days on campus by Staters, both student and faculty, working on the orientation program.

They will be given copies of the Alligator, the student handbook; they will be given mimeographed brochures explaining some of the baffling complexities that are comitant with the beginning of a new semester at an entirely new school; and most important, they will be given valuable advice and help by old students participating in the orientation program.

But even with all this assistance, many of the newcomers to State will have questions and problems, which we, the oldtimers, can help them with.

When we see one of these new students with a look of utter bewilderment on his face, it behooves us as citizens of a friendly college to ask him if there is anything we can do to help him with his enigmatic situation.

Each of us, as individual members of the student body, who have "been through the mill," can serve as ambassadors of good will in big brothering and big sistering the new members of our association through the quandary of those first few days on a new campus.

Female Athletes Seen As Solution To Male Shortage

By HAL GRANT

Golden Gater Feature Editor
"A woman's place is in the hundred yard dash."

Sound absurd? Well, it isn't. With the draft taking men by the thousands, it's becoming evident that male supremacy is being threatened.

Women are taking jobs of men in industry. They run machinery; they work long hours. They are taking executive jobs left vacant by draftees. But one field that they have left relatively alone is sports.

It's true that there are women participating in almost every sport, but as yet women have not left their impressions deep and lasting.

Women are champion golfers, tennis players, and swimmers. They even outdo some men on the wrestling mat. But as far as the major sports are concerned—baseball, basketball, football, and track—the woman has yet to challenge the man.

There are women's basketball, football, and baseball teams. And they offer some fairly exciting spectating. But women never have seemed to sell the country on their prowess in these sports. Chances are slim that they ever will.

The only male predominated sport which women have a chance to penetrate is track and field. And chances here are very good. Women have always been part of the International Olympic games, although they have always been in the background. In the past they have never seemed to steal the spotlight from their male competitors.

But from here on out there could be some changes made.

OLYMPIC TEAMS WEAKENED

With thousands of men entering the service, the United States Olympic team will be weakened considerably. Probably the simplest and most logical way to strengthen our teams is to place more emphasis on the women's side of the games. There are very few schools in the United States that have women's track teams. In fact, the number of schools having any sort of planned or complete program for women's sports is minute. Russia, however, has shown its prowess lately as far as women are concerned . . . at least in sports.

In last year's Olympic games in Helsinki, Russia literally ran away with every women's event on the books.

The United States Amateur Athletic Union, realizing the impending male shortage is urging all women possible to take advantage of the situation. Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A.A.U., claims that the United States can develop some good female athletes. He contends that "participation in track and field events will enhance rather than dilute femininity."

Fortunately there are some good American women athletes. However, there aren't enough. Because there are only a few there is very little competition available for these women. Because there is no competition, very few persons ever hear of them. And if no one hears, then no one becomes interested, and there is no competition.

It becomes a matter of a spinning whirlpool. There is no beginning or ending. It is one continuous cycle of nothingness.

SOLVING THE PROBLEM

What can be done?

Through educational programs in the country's schools, American women can be informed of the opportunity facing them. They can be trained. There can be competition between schools.

San Francisco State college has an adequate program of physical education for women. W. A. A. sponsors inter-school play days. These are designed to promote good will and competition between surrounding colleges. This plan, however, is merely the first step on a long road. The school will not lose anything if it does not sponsor a program of this sort. But it stands to gain everything if it does.

Olympic games competition is not for a team, but is individual. Something, unfortunately, which the colleges of the country have tried to keep to a minimum.

So now it rests in the hands of women. Women, who, just like their forebearers who fought for equal rights for women, are faced with an opportunity to show men what they can do. Unfortunately there is a problem connected with the opportunity. They are embarrassed.

It can be solved by realizing how important and healthful the outcome is.

Life at State Twenty-five Years Ago

By KEN FROMBERG

What facts can be uncovered by invading that section of the college library where the ghosts of the past hold forth?

"If one is observant he finds a man distinguishing the personnel of this class."

This is the shrewd observation of the Vigilante, forerunner of the Golden Gater, in its September, 1927, issue. Enrollment, considered normal at that time, consisted of 802 students, nine of which were upper division and 27 limited.

THE VIGILANTE SAYS . . .

This same issue contained an article stating that Joseph Marr Gwinn, superintendent of the San Francisco public schools, had proposed that four year's training above high schools be made a prerequisite to taking the city examination for teaching positions.

And even 26 years ago the college was suffering from growing pains. A new science building was nearing completion and "probably will open next month." It was predicted that use of the new building would relieve the crowded condition at the college.

Lucrative Scholarships Offered In Field Of Special Education

By DALE TUSSING

The field of Special Education—preparation for teaching of the blind, the partially seeing, the physically handicapped, the cerebral palsied, the deaf and near deaf, the speech defective, and the mentally retarded children—is a field for which San Francisco State college is particularly famous.

In 1947 the legislature of the state of California designated San Francisco State as the training center in the state for teachers, supervisors, administrators, and professional workers preparing to work with these exceptional children.

SCHOLARSHIPS OFFERED

This year, as in the past, four $1000 scholarships are being offered throughout the state by the California Congress of Parents and Teachers for training in Special Education—with the training to be at S. F.

Despite the fact that these scholarships have been open to State students in past years, as well as to other students throughout California, a very small percentage of applications have come from this school.

FOR EDUCATION MAJORS

The scholarships are open to anyone completing a curriculum in education.

"We hope that more of our own students will apply for the scholarships," said Dr. Leo F. Cain, Dean of Educational Services and Director of the Program of Special Education.

"I'm not sure what the exact figure is, but I think that only about five percent of the applicants have been San Francisco State students," he added.

MORE TEACHERS WANTED

Dr. Cain and the instructors in the Special Education department stress the extreme need of more teachers to work with handicapped children. In California alone there is a shortage of such teachers which runs into the hundreds.

In the nation there are five million children who require the aid of special teachers and services. Yet according to Dr. Leon Lassers, professor in Special Education, only 450,000 of them are now receiving the advantages of special education.

San Francisco State college gives a Master of Arts degree in Special Education, teacher certification in the several areas of the fields, special subject supervision, and/or adjusted programs for out-of-state and special students.

M.A. AVAILABLE

Working under the scholarships offered, a student—with careful programming—can at the same time complete the requirements for the Master of Arts degree in Special Education.

S. F. State Hoopsters Dropped By San Jose, Nevada; Meet Sacramento Next

A hopeful Golden Gator basketball team will tackle Sacramento State College in a two game home-and-home series Friday and Saturday nights.

The Sacramento "Hornets," sporting a 15-3 win, loss record, will travel to the Gator "palace of muscle" for the Friday night tip and then both squads will journey southward for the Saturday evening encounter.

In last week's court action Coach Dan Farmer's fast break five fell thrice before the deadly accuracy of enemy shotmakers. On Wednesday, January 28, the San Jose State Spartans slipped by the Gator quintet 65-63 in a game that saw the lead change 31 times. Failure to function on the free throw line was the chief cause of the local's downfall. The Spartans made 15 out of 18 on the gift line while State could only sink nine for 22.

Sophomore Gene Busby led the scoring parade with 10 field goals and three free throws for a 25 point total.

UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA

In Reno last Friday evening the Gators came out on the short end of a 89-68 count against the U. of Nevada. State came back Saturday night only to lose a 68-63 thriller in the last minute of play.

Center Al Desin annexed high point honors for State both nights with 22 on Friday and 25 markers on Saturday.
